The Aim of Specialist Learning Disability Services

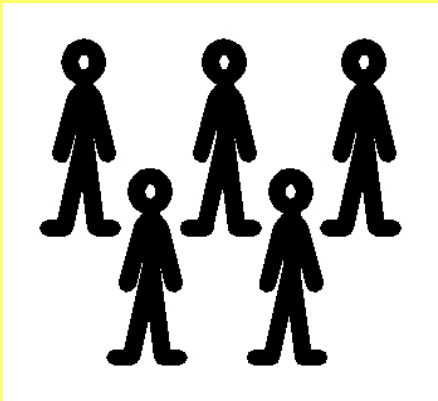

We work with other services to help adults with learning disabilities stay well.

We do this by:

- Helping all health services give a good service to adults with learning disabilities

- Working with adults with learning disabilities who have more complex needs

The main things we are working on this year

1. Improving our community teams

- Having good leadership
- Continue to work on care pathways
- Work with Health Facilitators and Acute Liaison Nurses to help all health services work better with adults with learning disabilities
- Make sure teams give a good service while spending less money

The main things we are working on this year

2. Improving the service we give to people in crisis (this is people who need a lot of help because they are not coping)

- Check how well our services are doing now
- Develop a new way of working with people who need a lot of help

The main things we are working on this year

3. Working with people who buy services and other people who provide services to change short break services.

- Put in a bid for money to do this work
- Set up consultation with people who use short break services (this is when we ask people what is important to them)
- Put together a plan to change services

The main things we are working on this year

4. Provide excellent services at the Agnes Unit

- Make sure we meet the standards for good inpatient services
- Make sure that people who use the services think they are good
- Make sure people who use the services are involved in what happens during their treatment
- Have an inpatient care pathway

To help us do these things we need to

- Have good staff who get the right training and support
- Have less time lost because staff are poorly
- Support staff to be more involved in changes
- Keep delivering a service that is safe, helps people to stay well and makes best use of money
