The Faculty of Health & Social Care with The Open University Sexuality Alliance

Invite you to the launch of

Talking about sex, sexuality and relationships: a guide for health, social care and education practitioners and organisations

The Open University Sexuality Alliance was formed in 2013 with the key purpose of developing sexuality guidance and standards for health, social care and education practitioners working with young people with life-limiting and life-threatening conditions (LLTCs) and their families. The Alliance is a collaborative partnership which brings together representatives from public sector organisations, charities, service users and academics with an interest in providing holistic care for young people with LLTCs. Today we invite you to celebrate the publication and launch of the guidance and standards. A free hard copy will be available at the launch and additional copies on The Open University Sexuality Alliance portal which is currently being developed at www.open.ac.uk/health-and-social-care/research/sexuality-alliance

Date: 1 December 2015    Time: 11:30–13:30 (to include lunch)
Venue: The Open University, 1-11 Hawley Crescent, Camden Town, London NW1 8NP (see map)

Proceedings:
11:30 Registration and coffee
11:45 Welcome and background to this work
   Dr Sarah Earle, Associate Dean Research, on behalf of The Open University
12:00 Launch of the Sexuality Guidance and Standards
   Dame Elizabeth Fradd, DBE
12:15 Views from young people with life-limiting, life-threatening conditions, led by Hameed Jimoh (Junior)
12:30 Lunch and networking

Please RSVP including any specific dietary requirement by 31/10/15 to hsc-re-events@open.ac.uk