

Are you interested in becoming a WARD AIDE for the LLR Reserves.....?

The LLR (Leicester, Leicestershire, and Rutland) Reserves are a flexible workforce that will be available to support the local health and social care community at times of pressure and high demand.

We are currently developing our reserves programme and are looking to recruit people interested in taking up a Ward Aide role. This paid, non-clinical role will support our inpatient wards at busy times when extra support is needed.

You would be working under the supervision of the ward team and will report to the nurse in charge. You will undertake a range of housekeeping and runner activities, such as keeping patients' company, helping them to call home, collecting items from pharmacy and stores, supporting housekeeping staff keeping ward store cupboards stocked, answering the ward phone, and dealing with general queries. You may also assist the ward housekeeping team to serve meals and clearing away at the end of service.

Successful candidates would need to undertake some paid core mandatory training, a face-to-face induction, and a session on the ward for familiarisation prior to deployment.

These posts are offered as zero-hour contracts with the expectation of a minimum of between 20 and 30 days work per year. The application process will involve an interview and to ensure suitability for the role and we will require 3 years of references and other employment checks. You will also need to undertake an enhanced adults and children's DBS check prior to starting.

If you would like more information, please contact lpt.wfbrecruitment@nhs.net who will be happy to help you.

Thank you for your interest in this role.
